

Shopify chargeback evidence checklist: Duplicate

Reason shown on your chargeback: Duplicate. The customer thinks you charged them twice for the same product or service.

What the bank is deciding

Whether the two charges were for two different things, or one thing billed twice.

Do first

- Check your orders and payments first. If you did charge the customer twice for the same product or service, Shopify's help says you have to accept the chargeback.
- If the two charges were for separate products or services, contact the customer and explain. If they agree, they should ask their bank to drop the chargeback.

Evidence to gather (tick what you have)

- ☐ A plain explanation of why there are two charges (matters most)
- ☐ A receipt and fulfillment record for the first order (matters most)
- ☐ A receipt and fulfillment record for the second order (matters most)
- ☐ Receipts that prove the two charges were for different products or services (matters most)
- ☐ An order comparison: numbers, timestamps, items
- ☐ Transaction logs showing one charge, or several charges for separate orders
- ☐ A pre-authorization explanation, if one charge was a temporary hold that cleared
- ☐ A message to the customer about the two charges
- ☐ Refund confirmation, if a real duplicate was already refunded

Also check

- Put the two orders side by side: order numbers, dates, items, amounts, and the fulfillment record for each.

Mistakes to avoid

- Fighting a charge that really was taken twice.
- Sending one receipt when the dispute is about two charges. Show both.
- Leaving out how the customer ended up with two orders, for example a second order placed after the first was edited.

Reminders from Shopify Help

- The due date is 7 to 21 days after the chargeback or inquiry is filed. It shows in your store's timezone, and if no time is shown the deadline is 11:59 PM on that date.
- Shopify automatically collects evidence and sends it to the credit card company on the due date. Adding your own evidence can improve your chances.
- You can edit your evidence at any time before the due date. After you click Submit now you cannot edit it.
- After the due date you cannot submit further evidence. Shopify's help says there are no exceptions.
- The credit card company's review can take up to 75 days after you submit. After the bank or card company rules, Shopify's help says there is no appeal and the decision is final.
